

Dear Congressman:

The last month has seen shameless political exploitation of the tragedy in Colorado. The recent anti-gun actions of the Senate have piled folly upon cowardice, and are now bringing legislation to the House of Representatives.

The Senate's anti-gun amendments to the Juvenile Justice Reform Bill display appalling disregard for whatever real remedies there might be. Indeed, they are far more like an admission that the Senate can think of nothing helpful, and can only stampede in fear before the agendas of the news media.

The killers in Littleton planned for a year, manufactured four dozen bombs, and stockpiled them without their parents' noticing. So, to thwart future tragedies, our Senate would impose trigger locks on gun sales!

All the guns the killers used came from other people, who at some point obtained these guns legally. But our Senate would impose new restrictions on gun transfers, with a clear strategy of working towards the registration of all sales.

Anti-gun legislation is a tragically irrelevant course for Congress to take, particularly as a supposed "reaction" to Littleton. This disgrace must be stopped. Please let me know as soon as possible where you stand. I will be watching this legislation very closely and with great concern.

Sincerely,
